Drilling Equipment Is Now Being Unloaded Here.

Work In Wainwright Oilfield Sure Starts In Ernest ; New Sites Chosen on Town Line and on J. Morton Farm British Petroleum Ltd, Finish NO. 4 Derrick.

On Wednesday last the members of the Wainwright Oil Producers Syndicate, met the directors of the Wainwright Oil Development Co., and completed the contract that had been pending whereby the new syndicate will start immediate operations on the leases of the local company. Among the business men of Edmonton who are interested in the new syndicate and who attended the meeting at Wainwright are the following: J. B. Gillis, A. C. Fueg, Jas Shaw, T Ketley, T. O. Bergstrum and N. J. MacDonald. Mr J. B Gillis was appointed Secretary of the Syndicate and C. A. Walton, of Wainwright, field manager, with R. Bradely head driller. We understand that L. L. Howes has been instrumental in forming the new syndicate also in securing the complete standard rig which is now being unloaded at Wainwrigh, During their visit at Wainwright Wednesday, the members of the new syndicate visited some of the leases near Wainwright and selected the site for their first well

The Wainwright Oil Producers Syndicate who have taken over the J. J. Rutledge Production Contract the Wainwright Oil and Development Co, Driller R. Bradley has unloaded four car-loads of drilling machinery which is being moved to a well site selected on legal subdivision Nine, Section thirty - six, Township Forty -four, Range seven, and within a quarter of a mile from the town of Wainwright and close to the railway track,

The outfit which is of the Standard Type was purchased by the syndicate and brought from the Foot-Hills country where it had been used to put down one hole, and is practically as good as new. Mr P. D. Laird of Wainwright, has secured a contract to erect the derrick and the lumber is being procured at the local yards,

The lease holdings of theSyndicate from the Wainwright Oil and Development Company comprises about 1600 acres of the choicest acreage in the territory. The field manager for the Syndicate is Mr. C. A. Walton owner of the Flour Mill at Wainwright The Treasure of the Syndicate is Mr F. C. Horn, Secretary-Treasurer of the Municipality of Gilt Edge The Secretary of the Syndicate is Mr. J. B. Gillies of the Builder's Exchange, Edmonton, with office at 507-8 Agency Building. The trustees in addition to the officers, are Dr. Wallace of Wainwright; Mr. L. L. Howes, of Wainwright, Mr Jas. Shaw, of Edmonton; and Mr. A. C. Fuog, of Edmonton and Wainwright professional, business and working men.

Work is going ahead rapidly at the well which the Maple Leaf company are sinking at Fabyan, near the original Imperial strike, and it should not be long before interesting news is heard from that venture.

Mr J. O. Williams, of Calgary, is here representing the Western Consolidated Oil Co., and is having a couple of carloads of material teamed out to the site of their drilling on the J. G. Morton farm just north of town

Another outfit which is to be unloaded this week also is that of the Globe Oil Co, which concern has a number of leases in this field in addition to some in the Lacombe and Pigeon Lake area.

Taken altogether the next two or three months should certainly prove to the world that Wainwright is on THE MAP; AND THERE TO STAY!

WAR MEMORIAL TOWER FUND IS AGAIN AUGMENTED BY PROCEEDS OF PLAY.

Concert and Two-Act Comedy Delights Large Audience.

(A review of the performance by R, G. Dunsmore;)

On Wednesday evening of last week a very delightful entertainment was presented to a large and appreciative audience in the Elite theatre. The concert was given under the auspices of the local chapter I. O. D. E. and the proceeds we understand are to be devoted to the memorial tower fund.

The first part of the programme was made up of individual numbers, the first being a piano solo by Miss L Bloom. Miss Bloom is one of the younger members of Wainwrights many talented artists and her offering on this occasion was well received. This was followed by a vocal solo by Miss Helen Aykroyd , her selection being "How Many A Lonely Caravan Miss Aykroyd has a splendid voice and her number was highly appreciated, the audience calling for an encore to which she responded in a hearty manner.

Miss Florence Tory gave a splendid reading, depicting in a truely creditable manner the young lady at the photographers trying to pose for her portrait and after spending much of the busy photoyraphers time finally deciding she did not want her photo taken as she had another dress at home which might look better.

Miss Tory was vociferously encored and responded with a neat little selection. This young lady has splendid natural ability in this line and with careful development we predict for her a bright future in her art.

Mrs C. Church sang "I hear you calling me" in most artistic style, her selection being well suited to her voice. Her encore was a catchy little scotch song "I'm o'er young to marry yet" Both numbers were highly appreciated.

A xylophone solo by Mr M. Pawling accompanied by Mrs Pawling was a real treat, his rendering of "The Rosary" being excellent and when he repeated the same number as an encore accompanied by Sotto voice singing behind the curtain, one felt glad to have been there.

The next number, a vocal selection by Mrs W. S. Clark was well received as was also her sprightly encore. Mrs Clark is always a favorite with a Wainwright audience.

The inimitable Bill Stuart wound up the first part of the programme with a catchy recitation which was loudly encored. Bill! responded nobly to the call and returned—in exactly thirty seconds in an entirely new make up—"Faust" lacking the horns. This time it was a negro melody,— No; not that;! we can't credit him with producing melody but for speed—Oh Boy! Anyhow, if there are any performers in town who can hold an audience better than our own J. W. we would be pleased to have him trotted out.

The second and concluding part of the programme was a two-act comedy entitled 'A Bundle Of Matches." The story is of a wealthy woman of the world, Mrs. Massenger, trying to dispose of her son in marriage to one of the society bells who are holidaying at a sea-shore resort. As a match maker Mrs. Massenger is a failure. Harold her son is in love with Anne Wyllys but as the latter is in reduced circumstances she is not acceptable to Harold's mama. Mrs Massenger informs Harold that he must marry any one of the five girls who are staying at the Hotel, and Harold being brought up to obedience agrees to do his best to please mama, but his affections for Anne is a stumbling block to mama's aspirations also to Harold's chances with the five society belles. Harold makes the attempt and proposes to each in turn and is refused. However if Mrs. Massenger failed as a match maker, not so the girls; and eventually through their good offices Harold gets the girl of his choice and mama is obliged to be content.

Mrs Wallace played the part of Mrs Massenger, and played it well; her acting was true to the type. She has a clear, well modulated voice and her lines could be distinctly heard in any part of the hall.

Her manner on the stage was graceful at all times and she appeared to be quite free from nervousness.

Mr. Ed. Turner, the only male member in the caste, took the character of Harold Massenger, the martyred son, who was to be sacrificed on the altar of a social ambition but who through the clever manipulations of the Bundle Of Matches' gave his scheming mama the surprise of her life. Mr. Turner took his part splendidly and his interpretation showed he had a good conception of the character. His proposals to five young ladies were well done, and his relief at being turned down in each case was quite evident.

He might have showed a little more animation when finally accepted by the girl of his choice but then—Harold was naturally slow.

Miss Margaret Spence, who played the character Anne Wyllys, an easy manner the loving and thoughtful young girl who finds her greatest happiness in distributing that happiness to others.

The parts of the five young ladies comprising "The Bundle of Matches" were taken by Miss Kain as Ruth Turnpenny, Mrs. W. H. Robinson as Katherine Otis, Miss V. Walstrom as Isabel Crester, Miss L. Fraser as Wilhelmina Breitner and Miss M. Turner as Editha Beverly.

These young ladies all played their parts well. They were charmingly gowned, giving an artistic touch to the nicely arranged scenery. Without going into detail we will only say they were all true to character and played their respective parts in a pleasing manner. Special mention might be made of Miss Fraser in the part of the vivacious western type of girl; her delight at having Harold propose to her and her delicate way of rejecting him was a bit of good acting. Also Miss Kain in her little bit of advice to Harold and Miss Turner in her sketching were exceptionally good

The introduction of a short ballet movement by all the girls during Miss Fraser's singing was a pleasing feature, though possibly none of them are yet ready to join the Ziegfeld "Follies."

The sea-side scene was painted by Mr. Bud Cotton and was a work of art considering the material at hand to work with.

We understand that the net result of the affair will be something over $100.00 and this will bring down the amount required to complete the memorial to a very small sum.

NEW CAMP SITE BEING SOUGHT IN GOVERNMENT PARK

The Town Council, the Board of Trade and the C. N. R. Social club officials are all working might and main to the end that a camping spot and picnic grounds may be allowed by the Federal government at the spot known as

Mott lake in the park, which beautiful spot would be much closer to town than the present nearest lake site, and the following petition has been prepared and signed and is now awaiting the consideration of the proper authorities:—

Dear Sir:—

In the year 1916, a reservation was made in the Buffalo Park, named Mott Lake Park, by the Government and granted for a pleasure resort and recreation grounds. At that time owing ot the raging of the great War it, was impossible to avail ourselves of the munificent offer; Now, the project if carried through as originally intend will be of inestimable benefit to the Town of Wainwright and surrounding Committees have now been appointed will be of inestimable benefit to the Board of Trade of Wainwright and Surrounding District and the C. N. R. Social Club of Wainwright, use their endeavors to assist in every possible manner the carrying out of the plan as originally projected.

We recognise that management and control is entirely in the hands of the Park Commission, and, the Committees are anxious to know what concessions are to be made in return for the privileges:—

Regarding camping privileges — amount of rental per season either as to tenting or building cottages.

If it would be permissable to erect a Pavilion, and if it is possible to have the Cattalo Shed moved to a more advantageous point, so that in the event of a sudden storm arising it would be available as shelter.

It will be necessary that two toilets be erected and also the boring of a well.

The Town is willing to aid in the construction of a proper thoroughfare leading to the Park, confined to its limits; the remainder leading thereto, the Board of Trade of District and C. N. R. Social Club are willing to assist in material and labor to a certain extent in the construction and maintenance of same.

In asking for the revial of this project, the members of the different committees are aware of the fact that it will entail a small expenditure to the Government, but feel that co-operating with them in the matter, that a resort can be established which will not only add to the prestige of the National Park, but will be conferring a been to the pleasure seekers not only of the Wainwright District, but to the public generally, and trust you will use your best endeavors in recommending to the Government, that this project be revived and that the necessary information concerning it will be communicated to the Mayor, at the earliest opportunity.

HOTEL LICENSES NOW BEING ISSUED

The first hotel licenses to sell beer will be issued to applicants this week according to the chairman of the liquor control board, R J. Dinning. The law requires that there be four weekly notices published by the hotel applicants of the intention to apply for licenses The act becam effective on May 10th and advertisements inserted on that day will have complied with the law.

Eight inspectors of the department are now out on the road and are busily engaged in looking over the premises of the early applicants who are getting their rooms in shape to meet the requirements of the law.

Several hotels in Edmonton and Calary will be the first to begin the sale of beer under the new law. Their applications will come up for consideration.

The board has already received objections to the granting of licenses in some instances and these will be given consideration when the applications come formally before the board.

Clark Manor Scene of Bad Fire Saturday Night

Valuable Stock Destroyed in Big Barns ; Many Years of Thoroughbred Breeding Lost Through Bad Spontaneous Blaze; Only House & Garage Saved Post Office Safe.

About 10.30 p.m. on Saturday night last. Just as Mr George Clark son of the owner had returned from a trip to Irma the big barns of Mr. J. G. Clark one of the widest known cattle and horsemen of the west, at Clark Manor were discovered to be on fire,

All the rest of the occupants of the farm were in bed and these were quickly roused and and an attempt made at once to remove the many head of valuable stock in the barns and sheds.

The fire which appears to be of spontaneous ignition, was fanned by the brisk wind which was blowing, and despite almost superhuman efforts, all that could be saved were some bulls and other cattle, no less than sixteen head of horses, including three registered stallions and ten registered Clyde mars perished in the holocaust which the extremely large barns truly formed.

The cattle barns, the poultry sheds —with hudreds of hens and chickens soon became a prey to the flames and all was lost, as well as all the harness a power ensilage cutter, and a large quantity of feed and seed grain.

The wind carried large quantities of burning embers on to the roof of the garage which is near the dwelling house, but this, by the united efforts of the neighbors and a number from Wainwright who rushed out in autos upon the alarm being rung in, was saved from destruction as was also the house and post office and the contents of these structures.

Mr George certainly had a narrow escape from accident, as in his endeavors to release some of the horses from the blazing building, he received a kick from a mare who rushed out of the barn after being released with her tail all alight. This was the only animal saved from the horse barn.

The insurance on the loss was only partially covered on the buildings and nothing at all was carried on the stock, and this makes it all the harder for the owner to bear. Practically all his efforts of some sixteen years in building up a strain of the finest Clydesdale stock in the province have now been wiped out in this fire, which was truly one of the worst in the district for many yearse

Mr Clark wishes to take this opportunity of extending his heartfelt thanks to the neighbors and friends who did all in their power to help to fight the flames, and also to those who journeyed out from Wainwright on the same quest.

H. E. Spencer's Speech on Budget

The following is the speech delivered by our member, H. E. Spencer, on the budget, in the house of commons, Friday, May 9th:—

"Mr Speaker in rising to address the house, I congratulate the Acting Minister of Finance (Mr Robb) on the able way he has presented his budget proposals. I also congratulate the government on at last recognizing the wisdom and necessity of starting to carry out their 1919 programme. I appreciate this more because I fully recognize that it is in recognition of the presence of the third group in the house, but for whose appearance this sort of budget would never have been presented. The statement that will give the greatest hope, however, was when the acting minister of finance said:

'We have certain basic industries, upon the success of which depend the growth of all other industries, and the greater development of our trade.'

'Of these basic industries I would place agriculture with all its varied branches first. Next to agriculture I would place our forests, our minerals and our fisheries. The real National policy is a policy that will encourage growth and development of these basic industries.'

"If ministers of finance would follow the lead of the present acting minister of finance, Mr Robb, and recognize that those are our basic industries, would derive new hope and a stimulus to greatr effort. If the ministers of finance for the last forty years had recognized which were the basic industries of this country, Canada to-day would be a far greater country than it is.

I should like to deal with a few of the orthodox suggestions that were put forward by the various members in this house during the annual budget debates. One of the favorite ideas of these hon. gentlemen who do not happen to be making their living off the land, is that those who are on the land should go in for mixed farming. Particularly is this advice given to those hon. members who come from the West. I should like to point out that this is going to have a very dire effect upon the agriculturists of eastern Canada, and the day will come, not many years hence, when, through the farmers of western Canada going into mixed farming, they will be found to be the greatest competitors of eastern Canadian farmers, both at home and abroad. I am pleased to see that the farmer members of eastern Canada do not hand out that advice: it comes from hon. members who are not interested in farming or who are not farmers themselves. Farmers in eastern Canada realize that western farmers will be real competitors and make things much worse for the eastern men as soon as they go into mixed farming.

A further suggestion relates to immigration which is held up as another of the cure-alls. Immigration of the right sort is what we want: volunteer immigration is all right; but immigration that is forced, as has been the case for some years past, as was particularly the case last year, is forced at a great cost to this country. A good deal of the criticism offered from this side of the house during the immigration debate last year, because we realized the government would be spending a great deal of money and probably throwing most of it away. What do we find is the result today, We find that although the government has spent some $3,500,000, every single settler that was brought into Canada plus 45,000 more have gone to the United States.

Another suggestion often given out at this time is that everybody should practise rigid economy. While to practise economy individually is all right, it is a terrible weapon, if carried out on a wholesale scale, as it would then cripple commerce in every way.

Another statement often made is that labor costs are too high, and labor comes in for a good deal of condemnation. I should like to put on record a few figures with regard to labor costs, in order to show that, when all is said and done labor costs are not always the greatest costs which we have to contend. I should like to give an example to show how labor costs are often small, comparatively speaking in comparison to other charges. In a statement given by Sir Adam Beck, in referring to the Hydro-Electric Commission, he gave thes figures:

Estimated Revenue for power plant for 1924:		$9,500,000
Interest	$6,000,000
Sinking fund	1,217,000
Deprecation	410,000
Operation	1,280,000	9,107,000
Surplus fffor the year		393,000

Or a surplus for the year of nearly $400000.

While listening to the debates in this house it has often occured to me how contradietory certain statements are. For instance, hon. members who sit on my right have been continuously criticizing the government for not carrying out their pledges. This year because the government are attempting to carry out their pledges—and we should give them credit for that—we find they are receiving just as harsh criticism from the Conservatives for trying to do so.

Another contradiction which I might point out is this. Regarding the group to which I have the honor to belong, representing, as it mainly does, the agricultural constituencies of western and eastern Canada, the farmers have often been criticised for not getting down to business and organizing. Now that have been organized and sent some sixty odd members to this house, their action seems to be criticised and not at all well received.

We have heard a great deal lately during this debate about the way in which people are leaving this country because of this low tariff budget. That argument, from my Conservative friends at my right hand might hold water were it not for the fact that for some years past while we had what might be called a reasonably high tariff we lost very large numbers.

Further advice given to the farmers is such as this: They are told to work harder, to produce more and to be thrifty. As one who knows the life of the farmer very intimately, I should like to know how farmers can be expected to work much harder. As regards producing more, I think think they have done their share in that respect, and as regards being thrifty, it is hard to tell how the majority of the farmers could be more thrifty than they are. It is rather amusing when when you consider the criticisms that are brought against the orientals who are coming into this country and the reasons given why certain people do not want them to be kept in Canada. The reasons given, are that they work too hard produce too much, and are too thrifty.

For some years past, indeed, I might say many years, through what you might call class legislation, the basic industries of this country have had very little attention paid to them, with the result they have suffered very much, and to-day are at a particular low ebb, so low that you find the agricultural people are able to pay a very small percentage, according to their numbers, as their part of the income tax bill of this country. Then the criticism is made of these people. 'Why don't they pay income tax '

We also hear a good deal in regard to the present standard of living in Canada, which it is said, should be higher. At the same time we find large sums of money being spent on immigration literature in central Europe with the idea of bringing a lot of those people out here, officials must be perfectly well aware that if large numbers of these people are introduced into our country the standard of living is apt to be lowered. For some time past it has been the aim of the minister of immigration with his staff to encourage people coming to this country to take up farming, and for a while no one was encouraged to come unless he settled on the land. I believe the doors are thrown open a little wider to-day but one point the minister of immigration should realize quite fully is this that you cannot force people to farm, irrespective of conditions. If economic conditions are unjust, uneven, unequal or unfair, you cannot force people to farm, and if you succeed in getting them to go on the land, they will not settle down under these conditions. We are making great efforts to curtail unemployment, but at the same time by this system of immigration, whereby we have induced people to come to this country out of proportion to the demands of industry, we naturally swell the ranks of the unemployed annually.

From the year 1911 onwards hon. gentlemen to my right—(Conservatives) have gone their level best to frustrate any chance we might have had of securing reciprocity with the United States, so that through their action we lost the best stock market we could have had. And now that we have lost that market we are told by these same gentlemen that we should go in for mixed farming. We have heard a good deal about the supposed agreement between the party representing the government and those gentlemen amongst whom I happen to sit. Criticisms have been made of a close alliance which it is alleged exists between these two groups. Well, Mr Speaker, it is interesting, on consulting Hansard, to find that in the year 192. of 21 votes that were taken in 12 the Liberals and Conservatives voted together against the Progressivess on 4 occasion the Liberals and Progressives voted against the Conservatives, while 4 other votes represented a combiantion of Progressives and Conservatives against Liberals: the other one being a mixed vote. I think, therefore, that we might infer from these figures that the true morganatic alliance is between the two historic parties.

The criticism has been made by an hon. member to my right durthis debate that the government has been false to the business interests, to whom it broke its promises. I want to point out the the governments of this country during the last forty years have been false to our basic industries. I desire to put on record a few figures in regard to the inequality in ability to pay income tax as between the farmer and other interests. These figures are important when we consider that the agricultuaral population represents about 50 per cent of the whole, and that there is twice as much capital invested in farming as in manufacturing and nearly twice as many people engaged in the industry. I am recording these figures because there has been so much criticism in this house of late to the effect that the farmers have not been paying their share of income tax. I have the figures for the years 1920, 1921, 1922, and 192.. In the year 1920 the farmers paid $525,836, and in the same year the professional classes peaid $1,09.,401, while the three groups representing employees, merchants and manufacturers paid $11,788,398. in 1921, the farmers paid $611,736; the professionals paid $2,642, 585; and the three other other groups paid $27,209,068. In the year 1921 the farmers paid $1,299,104; the professionals paid $2,256,544, or about twice as much as the farmers were able to pay; while the employees, merchants and manufactures together paid $26,736,032. Now we come to the year 1923, when there was tremendous drop in the amount the farmers were able to pay for in that year they were able to pay an income tax only of $472,049; while the professionals increased their contribution to $2,663,900; the three groups comprising employees, merchants and manufacturers having paid $21,874,456. This, I think, is very conclusive proof that the farmers arenot making a great deal of profit in their industry to-day.

The subject of the tariff has been covered so well by hon. gentlemen in all corners of the house, that I hesitate to add to the information in Hansard, however, I want to quote from a pamphlet issued by the National City Bank of New York. This information will be particularly interesting to my Conservative friends in the house. The pamphlet says:

Besides we are not sure that lower duties would increase our imports since reading the following paragraph from Dr. Leaf's address to the stockholders of the Westminster Bank, London, a few weeks ago. He said:

It happens that we have before us at this moment an excellent illustration of the way in which international payments are made in goods. It will be within the memory of all of you that, some two years ago the United States passed what is kniwn as the Fordney triff—a very high tariff designed with the special intent of excluding foreign goods, and in the belief that other countries could not dispense with the products of the United States. Now, how has that Fordney tariff worked? I have before the figures of trade between the United States and Great Britain for the first nine months in1923. I compare them with the first nine months of 1922. You will suppose—or at least the authors of the tariff certainly supposed— that there will be a great falling off of the exports from Great Britain to the United States, while the exports from the United States to Great Britain will be maintained. Well, what are the facts? The exports from the United States to Great Britain have declined by more than £16,000,000 while the exports from Great Britain to the United States have increased by over £10,000,000. The balance of trade in these months has moved nearly £27,000,000 in favor of this country. Surely this must give Mr. Firdney serious matter for consideration."

The protectionist interests are perhaps beginning to learn that they cannot successfully preach increased tariffs and reduced wages at the same time. The tariff has failed to protect Canadian industry; it has failed to maintain purchasing power in the home market for Canadian goods—it has apparently been of very little benefit to Canadian manufacturers. The tariff has certainly been no protection to Canadian workers against unemployment. I agree with J. M. Keyes the noted economist that protection cannot cure unemployment. Protection is an attempt to limit the volume of trade; it means charging the foreigner more at the expense of doing less trade with him.. A sound principle is that there can be no disadvantage in receiving useful objects from abroad. If we have to pay at once, we can only pay with the export of goods and services, and the exchange would not take place unless there was an advantage in it. Every export which is not paid for by an import represents an increase in the capital available within the country. Thus an artificial interference with the imports must either interfere with exports, or involve an artificial stimulation to capital to leave the country. Now, if we are to interfere at all with the natural course of trade, surely it should be with the object of keeping capital at home, not driving it abroad. Our exports are our incomes. To put obstacles in their way is to be as crazy as a business man would be who tried to prevent his customers and his debtors from paying their bills.

One of our greatest problems is

Less Pot-washing

SMP Enameled Ware has the smooth surface and polish of fine crockery—without the breakage. And it is so very easy to clean—just like china, and therefore makes light work of pot washing.

Try this test. Take an SMP Enameled Ware sauce pan and an all-metal sauce pan of equal size. Into each pour a quart of cold water. Put on the fire at the same time. The SMP sauce pan will be boiling merrily when the water in the other is just beginning to simmer.

Dry, dull hair takes new softness, sheen

You, too, can have the beauty of lustrous, silky hair. Even if your hair is brittle, dull, lifeless today.

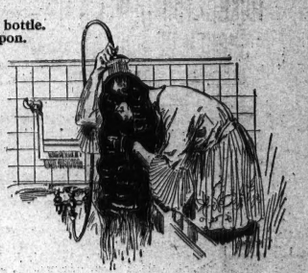

It can be done by using this correct shampoo — which authorities recommend.

This offers you a test, free.

Pay attention to this fact which hair specialists know:

The correct shampoo contains olive oil. It cleanses hair and scalp thoroughly, clear down into the tiny pores at the base of each hair.

Yet it cleanses gently, mildly. Leaves hair soft as a child's, pliant, richly gleaming with natural color and beauty.

This olive oil treatment is given to you in a modern, dainty form in Palmolive Shampoo. Pleasant to use. Not a bit oily. Quickly beneficial. And economical.

Try it—at our expense. Send coupon for 15c trial bottle free.

After using it the first time you will notice encouraging results.

WAINWRIGHT, ALBERTA JUNE 4th, 1924

'Credit is dead " We have all heard this remark repeated many times during the last two years. On every hand we have observed a curtailment of the credit previously extended, and we have been forced more and more to curtail our purchases—whether those purchases be of land, implements, autos, clothes, groceries or pure luxuries—with the result that we all recognize our purchasing power is reduced to the minmum. Where formerly we were invited to buy, no matter whether we had money on hand or not, we are now frequently brought face to face with the requirement to pay cash; and when we go to the bank we are told we cannot borrow the money.

Very subtle and varied are the affairs. It is, obviously, easy to attribute this state of affairs to the reduced prices we obtain for our products, and also to the increased price we have to pay for our necessities; and it is also easy to attribute these things to the adverse world-wide conditions prevailing to-day These serious factors loom so large before our eyes that it has been easy for us to overlok another important and subtle change which has been taking place in our midst and which materially affects our own financial credit, particularly if we go to the bank with the intent of raising a loan. Now a very close enquiry is made as to our ability to pay this back when the due date arrives, and all borrowings are (rightly) restricted to this narrow margin.

Most of us reached this district at a time when any active man with an average degree of tenacity, and with little else but the essential ten dollars, could in a period of three years acquire an aset in land of what was then considered worth about two thousand dollars. This (then) reasonable expectation created an elasticity of credit quite unknown in Europe, where such an asset was only acquired after a prolonged and strenuous effort

There is little wonder that such a freedom of credit encouraged the belief that it was of more permanent nature than subsequent events have proved to be the case.

Reviewing the past we can now observe that in 1913, the year previous to the war, there had already appeared evidences of the harmful effects of overworked and ill-based, credits; and it is quite problematical what solution would have been found had the war not occurred. But the war occurred, and brought in its train rising prices and fresh necessities for overworking credit in buying more land, more machinery, more everything (saving perhaps sugar and flour. The current of events proved so strong that we were carried along by and with it.

After the war we were all, financiers as well as industrialists, deceived by a somewhat unusually prolonged period of post-war prosperity; and we had become so accustomed to the unusual elacticity of credit which had prevailed since our arrival in the country that we had come to regard it as normal and permanent.

The last few years have carried home to the minds of all of us that credit has lost this elasticity and that the credit now available seems to bring more disadvantages than advantages to those who do obtain it.

We are now very slowly learning that we must get back to the old fashioned system of Britain, France and other European countries, and count a man's yearly income, not his aggregate capital, as his basis for credit. And also that a credit which can only be used on a most conservative basis.

In other words, our credit is only worth the profit we can earn in one year, less a reasonable margin for business conditions and unfavorable vicissitudes. Income, not estate, is the only sound basis for credit, and we have arrived at a point where we must base our activities on this principle.

This is all too strongly emphasized at every forced sale which is held, whether those sales be of farm stock and property or of business establishments. At these we learn that assets are seriously impaired in value, fetching only a fraction of their worth: this being so, it is apparent they are not a suitable basis for credit. They have a real worth it is true. Actually they are worth as much as they ever were but this worth can only be realized by sticking with the game, and deriving our income from their use and increase.

The possession of an asset of say ten thousand dollars is no longer the basis of our line of credit. That basis is found only in the yearly profit arising from the use and increase of that ten thousand dollar asset. To borrow or to incur a debt greater than we can pay from income is manifestly bad financing, alike for the borrower and lender.

No small share of the present stringency is directly due to the general departure from this rule in the past; and the best advance will be made in the future by those who restrict their use of credit to the basis of current income.

BULLETIN FROM PROVINCIAL GOVT.

WHEAT IN THE NORTHLAND

Herman Trelle, who took second place with his Marquis wheat at the Chicago International Exposition last year, and whose farm is at Lake Saskatoon west of Grande Prairie, and 400 miles northwest of Edmonton, reports that on May 24 his new wheat stood nine inches above ground. He sent a sample to W. J. Stephen, Field Crops Commissioner, of the Government, the past week to prove his contention Prof. Cutler of the University was also the recipient of a sample.

Passengers For The Arctic

A full complement of passengers for arctic will leave Edmonton June 17 to catch the first steamer on the northern waters for the Arctic regions. The party will include the judicial party going north for the annual court sessions in the north, and a considerable number of tourists and prospectors.

Shipments of Grain on North Road

Over 600,00 bushels of grain have been shipped out from points on the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway the past season of which more than 350,000 bushels were wheat, and more than 193,000 were oats. One point, Bon Accord, holds the record of a total shipment of 398,000 bushels.

On the other Government-owned line, the Lacombe and Northwestern, which runs north-west from Lacombe to Hoadely, the total shipments were nearly one million bushels of grain, the wheat shipments alone totalling 675,000 bushels. The record point on this line was Bentley with a shipment of 279,000 bushels.

Newspaper Men Entertained

A party of Canadian daily newspaper men and wives were entertained at the Alberta Capital during the past week on their way to the annual convention at Vancouver. Some of the visitors had not been west before, and naturally were greatly impressed with what they saw in Alberta. On their return East the party is to be entertained at Calgary.

SETTLERS ARRIVING

Settlers from many countries are arriving in Alberta in considerable numbers each week, most of them being from Britian and Northern Europe, with several parties from the United States.

Farm Young People's Week

The sixth annual farm young people's week at the University will be held June 4th to June 10th. Lectures on agricultural topics, with a program of entertainment, is provided for those who attend, who include young people from the farms between the ages of 16 and 25.

OIL ACTIVITY

In addition to the activity in the Lethbridge-Coutts oil field this year, there will also be drilling on at least five different locations in the Wainwright field east of Edmonton this summer.

TWO NEW MAGISTRATES

In accordance with the request of the Dominion Government, the Alberta Government has appointed A. B. Campbell, prominent Edmontonian to be magistrate at Jasper National Park, these officials being maintained by the Dominion Government.

Alberta's Low T. B. Death Rate

According to figures compiled by a prominent American insurance company, Alberta has a very low death rate from tuberculosis in comparison with other countries. Alberta's rate is given as 58.1 per 100,000. Canada's rate being 111.5 per 100.00 white policyholders, and the U. S. rate being 90.5 per 100,000 white policyholders.

Railway Commission to Sit in Alberta

Sittings of the Dominion Railway Commission will be held in Alberta shortly, when in behalf of the Alberta Government, A. Chard, Freight Supervisor, will bring up several matters including an application for stop-over milling-in-transit rates on lumber shipped from saw mills in the north country to outside points. At present this lumber must be sent to Edmonton for milling, and the full rate paid in re-shipment from Edmonton.

Collecting Farm Statistics

In conjunction with the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the Provincial Department of Agriculture is now engaged in its annual enumeration of areas sown to crop and farm livestock throughout the province.

Card schedules upon which the farmers are asked to enumerate the areas sown to various crops on their farms, and the number of livestock owned by them or sold and slaughtered during the past season, have been distributed by the Dominion Bureau in co-operation with the Provincial Department These schedules have been mailed to secretaries of school districts, for distribution to farmers through the medium of the school teachers and school children, and through other mediums.

The co-operation of the farmers of the Province is earnestly solicited in this work. This enumeration is simply an agricultural stock-taking, and the statistics gathered thereby are reliable only insofar as the farmers give their co-operation, and provide accurate returns. Farmers need not fear that these returns will be used for income tax purposes. The returns are received and dealt with under secrecy, and the individual returns are not published, merely the resulting totals.

The schedules, when filled out by the farmers, should be returned to the school teachers, or to the secretary-treasurers of the school districts, who will in turn, mail them back to the Department of Agriculture at Edmonton These schedules later are sorted into crop districts and sent to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa for final compilation.

Farmers are asked to fill in the schedules as accurately as possible and return them at the earliest possible moment. School teachers or secretaries who find the supply of schedules sent them insufficient, may secure more by applying to the Department of Agriculture at Edmonton.

C. N. CROP REPORT

The Canadian National Railways crop report for the week ending May 17th, said "Seeding of wheat in the prairie provinces was practically finished and in number of districts the crop was showing well above ground. Oats and barley have been sown in a number of districts The weather was reported to be ideal for work on the land, though cool for promoting growth. One or two districts reported need of moisture while in other parts of the field were still under water. Several stations in the Regina district reported cut worms appearing in large numbers."

BEAUTIFYING PRAIRIES

The tree planting division of the Dominion Forestry branch, from its nurseries at Indian Head and Sutherland, have just, completed the twenty-second annual distribution of seedling and cutting of trees for shelter belt and wind-break planting in the three prairie provinces. The demand by applicants for trees have increased yearly to the present annual output of 5'94 925 trees to more than 4,500 farmers.

Coast Trade Board to stage Excursion

The Vancouver Board of Trade has arranged an excursion to the prairie provinces for some time this summer. Alberta and Saskatchewan will be visited for certain, and it is thought possible that the tour may be extended as far east as Winnipeg. At present the itinerary includes Edmonton, North Battleford, Saskatoon, Regina, Brandon, Portage La Prairie, Winnipeg, Moose Jaw, Swift Current Lethbridge and Calgary.

W. A. McLeod, publicity commissioner for the province of Saskatchewan, left last week over Canadian National lines to attend the British Empire Exhibition. While in Winnipeg en route Mr McLeod expressed very optimistic views as to condition in Saskatchewan, both from an agricultural and commercial point of view.

Indian Treasure Hidden at Bon Echo

Long before Jacques Cartier sailed up the St. Lawrence to discover Hochelaga, a now-forgotten race of people were making pilgrimages to the Big Rock towering above the waters of Lake Mazinawe in Eastern Ontario to observe religious ceremonies, to worship before this great natural altar and to propitiate the gods who dwelt within its granite mass. In the backwoods now, five hundred years ago the Big Rock of Bon Echo was in the center of the greatest white pine forest the world has ever known and on a main highway between the north and Lake Ontario. There were no backwoods in those days, and the streams were the travel routes for the pagan people who followed the seasonal migrations of the animals with which the forests teemed.

To them the Big Rock at Bon Echo must have been a thing of mystery, as it remains today both to archeologist and geologists. None can reconcile the sheer untouched face with the glacial markings along its top, and in the same way the paintings along the face are an unsolved riddle. "Who put them there"? and "what do they mean"? are unanswered questions. Along the face of the Big Rock a few feet above the waterline are the hieroglyphic records of an unknown people. Painted in a virtually imperishable paint, whose composition is unknown, and which has defied the weathering affected of wind and water, these records baffle the archeologists of the continent.

Whether they have a warlike or religious significance is not known, although some people hold that they record a great victory of the Iroquois over the Hurons and Algonquins and have been written in some involved and mystic code.

A more conservative interpretation claims that the paintings of the Big Rock are trail marks, records of the hunt, signboards for other travellers. The natives of the backcountry claim that they hold the secret to the treasure cave located in the Rock, and that the solution of their riddle would open the entranceway to the long lost silver of the Indians.

From Brockville to Trenton, on the shores of Lake Ontario, the legend of Meyer's Cave has long persisted. The hint of such a cave first came when the Indians from the country to the north brought in bars of native silver to exchange for food and firearms. For years they refused to discuss the source of their wealth with anyone, but in time, a trader by the name of John Meyers, who had been brought up in association with Indians, was able to ingratiate himself into the confidence of two members of the tribe and in exchange for liberal quantities of fire-water, they agreed to conduct him north.

Late in the fall they set out, made their way up the Moira and Skootamatta Rivers, portaged from Loumishtigouche Lake into Lake Mazinawe and came to the Big Rock. Conflicting stories tell of Meyers actual find. One tells of a fissure between two huge masses of rock, a long entranceway through which the trader crawled, and of a cavern at its end. When the fat pine torches carried by his drunken guides illumined the interior Meyers found himself inside an irregular cube fifty feet in size and along whose sides were piled rough cast bars of native silver, as one piled cordword.

The trader took what quantities of the metal he could place in his knapsack and in his pockets, and departed, making as accurate a mental record of the location of the entranceway as he could. His companions would not allow him to blaze a tree, or to place a cairn, for by this time they were becoming frightened over their betrayal of the secret. The small party set out for home but crossing the lake at the headwaters of the Skoot River, their canoe was swamped by a heavy storm, and the Indians abandoned Meyers who had made his way to shore with difficulty. In order to save himself from drowning he was forced to throw away all but a small quantity of silver carried in the pockets of his coat. Without food, his firearms gone, ill, wet and hungry he reached Belleville after ten days hardship. As a result of the exposure he took pneumonia and died in the course of few months.

It is an improbable story but one thing is certain. In the Meyers family there are spoons made from the silver he brought down with him. He left a map, drawn from memory, and in time this fell into the hands of a lawyer, George Merrill, who went north and relocated the cave, in company with another man. Loth to divulge the discovery, he did nothing for some years and when he did return the fires had swept through the backcountry and had altered its typography to such an extent that he was never able to locate it again.

Several comfortable fortunes has been spent trying to locate the cave. One man lived for fourteen years on top of the Big Rock going ever every square inch of it, time and time and again, certain to the day of his death, that his perseverance would be rewarded. Today in a sheltered hollow there are a few rotting logs at right angles to mark his home.

Another expedition spent thousands of dollars scraping the earth off the central portion of the rock, in a vain search for the cave. Once or twice every summer a group of old prospectors will appear at Bon Echo Inn, and armed with pickaxes and hammers, will mysteriously disappear up the iron staircase mounting the Big Rock, certain that at last they are going to find the lost millions. A day or two later they creep down the staircase, climb silently aboard the Canadian Pacific train, and go home as they have come, without the treasure.

And over all the Big Rock watches as it has watched a millions years, serene and indissoluble.

ANNOUNCE THIRD ANNUAL TOUR TO THE COAST

Special Train from Winnipeg
Stops Made at Various Points of Interest

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED

This tour, which will be interesting to the holiday maker and of great educational value to the student and to the teacher, offers an unusual opportunity for seeing, under the most favorable conditions, the Canadians Rockies, including Jasper National Park, and the Pacific Coast,

The special train, operated in connection with this tour and consisting of modern sleeping car equipment dining car and radio observation car, will leave Winnipeg July 2nd. After stopping at various points of interest the train will arrive at Prince Rupert on July 7th. At this latter point, the party will embark on one of the palatial steamships of the Canadian National Pacific Coast services for a cruise of 550 miles through the famous "Inside Passage" to Vancouver. While the tour terminatesat Vancouver, those who desire to make a trip to Victoria may have their tickets read "Victoria as their destination without any additional cost.

The local agent of the Canadian National Railways will be pleased to give you full particulars of this tour, including the cost, choice of routes returning etc.

H. E. SPENCER'S SPEECH

to enable people to get purchasing power to buy what is produced. Science has so speeded up industry that this is practically impossible under our present system, with the result that we run into periodical world slumps in trade, unless we get a war to retrieve the situation by destroying quantities of material, and thereby giving a big impetus to trade.

As an example of this speeding up of industry, they have in the United States o labor-saving machine which takes the place of the old-fashioned sock machine in Europe of thirty years ago, which employed one operator on six machines, producing 422 socks per day. They now employ full automaties, one operator now attends to twenty-five machines and produces 3,800 socks per day. The purchasing power of the people is ultimately determined by the pay roll of the people. When payrolls are dispensed with by cutting down labor costs, the world will be a place of bliss and bond-holders.

It is very satisfactory to know that more people are realizing that the problem is not one of production but of consumption or purchasing power; although it is unfortunate that very few hon. members in this house are prepared to go that far. In a New York journal entitled Commerce and Finance I read the following:—

It is now evident that in the production of some basic and fabricated commodities our capacity exceeds the powers of domestic consumption. Were we to produce up to maximum capacity in these commodities the conditions of the eighties would be repeated and competition be highly destructive.

Inconsidering the production and marketing of goods, it is clear that our tendency is to lay too much emphasis upon their origin, the production rather than the consumption of goods, for it is the consumer that makes business and not the producer.

During the coming year we must avoid piling commodities upon merchants beyond their power powers to dispose of them. We must match eagerly over distribution, we must study the powers of the people to consume goods, remembering that the important thing in merchandise is the power of the people to consume and not the power of production.

Following this statement, is is worth while considering the remarks of Mr. Hoover of the United States, made come three years ago, in referring to Europe, which should be one of our best markets. He said he considered that one hundred million people on that continent were not really self-supporting. They either lived with the aid of credit and charity or half-lived or did not live at all.

If Canadian business is going to come back to normalcy we have got to see that Europe has purchasing power. I should like to know what the government's plans are so far as Canada is concerned in bringing this about.

We have heard a good deal in this House in regard to the amendment moved by the hon. member for Centre Winnipeg, (Mr. Woodsworth). That amendment is very similar to the platform on which I was elected, the platform which I have stood by since I entered Canadian public life the platform that I believed in last year—and to the amendment I supported last year. Therefore I cannot see anything in it which will prevent me voting for it this year also.

We have heard from various parts of the House about their serious condition that Canada is in, not only in the West but also in the East. We have heard that but I believe that the agricultural interest is in a far worse condition. The people are crying out for relief, That relief must come, and come quickly, or we as legislators will be held responsible.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

A WRONG CONCLUSION

The following story is told of an Oxford Professor of Logic, who illustrated the danger of jumping to conclusions, no matter how logical they might appear to be, by stating the example of a young man who got drunk on three successive nights.

The first night he got drunk on whisky and soda, the second on brandy and soda; and the third on gin and soda.

Bringing his knowledge of logic to bear upon the problem, he came to the conclusion that the soda, the only thing that had been consistent throught the whole three tests was responsible for his disaster and he therefore decided to forswear soda for the rest of his life.

Jimmy, not feeling very well, was advised by his mother to go and see the doctor.

"Now, my little man" said the doctor, "what is the matter with you?"

"It's like this, doctor," answered Jimmy. "You know how you feel when you don't know how hw you feel . Well, that's how I feel."

—:o:—

A little boy was given half a dollar by his uncle. He had heard that a certain make of car is very cheap, and he wrote to the factory for one. They were so amused that they asked him to visit them. His aunt took him to the factory.

"Go round," said the manager, having taken the half-dollar, "and choose the car you like the best."

He wandered round, loking at the various supecimens.

"Well?" said the manager, after he had made a thorough inspection.

"Please, I'd like my half-dollar back." said the boy.

of the series dealing with the establishment of the Bank of Montreal at representative points in Canada and elsewhere

WEST OF THE GREAT LAKES

THE growth of the Bank of Montreal has closely coincided with the gradual development of Canada from a small colony to a great Dominion.

In the Bank's westward advance to the Pacific Coast, one of the important links in its transcontinental chain of Branches was formed in 1878 at Winnipeg, when the Bank opened its first Branch west of the Great Lakes.

This forward step, taken seven years before railway communication was opened up between Montreal and Winnipeg, made available to the incoming population on the prairies the stabilizing co-operation of a strong, conservative and at the same time energetic financial institution.

Of the Bank's 567 Branches, 12 are situated in Winnipeg and 180 in the Prairie Provinces, including Winnipeg.

COMPLETELY WORN OUT

Mr. A. S Brown gains health from Dreco and finds it greatly improves Mrs. Brown's strength too.

"For a great many months I suffered terribly from stomach trouble and indigestion," says Mr A. S. Brown, 217 David Blk., Calgary, 'My food did not seem to digest properly and I had to be very careful what I ate, in order to avoid great distress from gas. I suffered from bad taste in the mouth, my appetite became very poor, I got weak and run down and began to lose weight. Many a night I would roll and toss about most of the night, as I was completely worn out.

"I was compelled to take laxatives regularly and I guess I formed the habit of taking drugs to promote regular bowel action.

"Two weeks ago I started taking Dreco and I believe now that I have come to the end of my suffering. I have gained six pounds, feel much stronger, have no more tired, worn-out feeling. I can eat almost anything without suffering afterwards, After I obtained such wonderful results, my wife, who was run down in general, and suffered from headaches and dizzy spells, began to take Dreco too. It has done away with her headaches and dizzy spells and now we are giving it to our daughter, as it has proven its worth to use.

Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs. It is reliable corrective for digestive disorders made from herbs, roots, bark and leaves and has brought better health to thousands of sufferers.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Wainwright by. Wainwright Pharmacy, and is sold by a good druggist everywhere.
